

Let's face it, as women we have progressed significantly from the radical notion of a pill that prevents pregnancy. However unconscious internalized misogyny seems inevitable even in today's society. I am passionate about equality and contradicting the social fallacy that feminism places women higher than men. As modern women in education with increasingly unrestricted possibilities we need a voice to do our achievements justice and steer female representation in Salford into the future. I believe I would be more than suitable for this position and hope I get the chance to represent and empower my fellow females.
